

THE VOYAGE DOWN RIVER

Remarkable Trip by Two Ladies
With Intrepid
Escorts.

DOWN THE JAGGED JAMES

A Dress Suit Case That Insisted on Getting to Richmond
Ahead of the Boat.

The remarkable trip of Mrs. R. S. Walker and party from Lynchburg to Richmond over the jagged rocks of James River in a small boat attracted wide attention. Mrs. Walker was accompanied by her beautiful daughter, Miss Maude, and two young members of the sterner sex. The distance traveled is about 146 miles. The trip occupied a week, and the adventures encountered therein were many. There might have been serious results but for the constant efforts of Messrs. S. C. Hurt and John Latchford, the cavaliers, aided by a hunter, Isbell by name, Isbell by name.

STORY OF THE TRIP.
The story of the week of peril and pleasure is told by Mrs. Walker as follows: We had scarcely gotten out of sight of Lynchburg before our troubles began; one and then the other of our gallant sailors were over the side, wading, then swimming, holding the boat to keep it off the rocks, or prizing it off after the swift water had washed it on. By one o'clock we got into the current that sets so swiftly to Joshua Falls and the crew fell quiet, fearing we did not know exactly what, hoping nothing worse than a wetting.

In a moment, over the side goes Mr. Hurt, holding the boat and swimming; Mr. Isbell and Mr. Latchford standing up, pulling, and with one swift dash we are over the dam and into the falls, the boat jumping about five feet, with waves about us that reminded us, very uncomfortably, of the breakers, but we had accomplished the wonderful feat of jumping Joshua Dam and Falls, with only about a gallon of water shipped. When we were our hearts? Well, sometimes they say they get into your throat, anyhow, they are much more comfortable there than in the water. Our heroes began to think of the inner man. We found a landing, and oh! how we enjoyed our first lunch. We commenced with a whole ham, tomatoes, pickle, crackers, and alas! muddy river water, as our "Mecca" the chimney, did not fulfill its promise of pointing to the much-longed-for spring. A half hour's rest and off again, as we had set ourselves a rate of thirty miles per day.

STRIKE RAPIDS.
We strike rapids again. We are getting on swimmingly, when over the side goes Mr. Hurt, (the "tiger" of the Lynchburg Boat Club) striking a slick rock, he and the boat go down the falls together, he not exactly as he expected, but holding bravely to the boat and piloting us safely through. The sun was setting when we came to camp at Walker's Ford, twenty-one miles from home, and for the first time realizing that we had undertaken the hundred and forty miles of the James in a fourteen foot, flat bottom, open boat.

Down the river we rush and find ourselves in the midst of rapids. We were swept into them through an opening not over five feet wide, gave a sharp turn to the right to avoid a hidden rock (which we located by the ripples) when bang! on to another, and we are all in the river and our beloved possessions sinking or floating off before our eyes.

A CATASTROPHE.
Immediately a vision came to me of our advent into Richmond without dry or clean clothes. Mr. Hurt had caught me and Mr. Latchford was holding my daughter. I called out: "Mr. Hurt, get your rifle. (a handsome Marlin sixteen repeater). Mr. Latchford, please swim after our suit case."

It seemed bent upon getting to Richmond far ahead of us. My daughter and I scrambled ashore. Mr. Latchford struck out swimming and came back towing the case. I called out to him, "has it any water in it?" "I don't know, Mrs. Walker, it's awfully heavy."

When he came to shore he tilted the case and water poured out like it was a pitcher instead of the dress suit case of two forlorn women who had expected it to keep their best clothes dry, even if submerged. After getting the boat off the rocks, putting it ashore, we spent some time diving and swimming for the lost cargo, but had to content ourselves with about two-thirds of the things we originally started with. We emptied our boat of water and set out again, but not until we had dubbed this our "Waterloo" (which happened to be the river). "Ape Falls," because a negro sat calmly in his boat across the river and never offered to help us one bit, or seemed in the least concerned whether we sank or swam.

Proceeding with her narrative, Mrs. Walker gives a harrowing account of uncomfortable nights afloat and ashore, cold and hunger, winding up with this description of the shooting of Boshers Dam near Richmond:

When we came to Boshers the boys wanted to go over in the boat, but I would not agree to this, now knowing how deep the water was below the dam. We unshipped the cargo and Maude and I carried it to the buttress, all except the tent and locker, these Mr. Latchford brought up. Then he got the boat well out in the stream, tied a rope to the chain and swam ashore. Mr. Hurt had gone down on the buttress, holding the rope. The boat swept out in the current, Mr. Hurt lifting the end with the rope as it poised a second on the brink, then over with a swift graceful dart like a sea gull and she settled gently down, and Mr. Hurt guided her out of the swift seething water—she had not shipped a quart of water.

THEY ARRIVE.
We got on finely until within a half mile of the five-mile lock, then a sudden turn to the right to keep off a rock and in less than twenty feet a sharp turn to the left, we cannot make it, but are rushed upon a rock and almost upset. Both boys are out and on the lower side holding the boat up out of the water, but not until she had shipped such a sea that we would have foundered had not the rope been on the other side. Alas! all our efforts at our toilet. After almost super-human efforts we are off and at the lock. Here two old river men, one rowing me unpleasantly of Dickson's "Bridge" helps to carry the boat around the lock, and we are in the smooth water of the old canal, and after a few minutes' pull, fairly into Richmond.

AT THE HOT SPRINGS.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
HOT SPRINGS, VA., September 22.—With the autumn air and bracing weather comes a change in the spirit of this resort, which has taken on a tinge of gayety usual to this season of the year. There have been tennis matches for silver cups nearly every day, tea, bridge and driving parties innumerable.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Harris, Jr., and their attractive daughter, Miss Kate Harris, of Richmond, are the latest arrivals from the metropolis of Virginia, and they have been much sought after with invitations since their coming. On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. George Draper, of Hopdale, Mass., gave a large bridge party at the club-house for her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Davie, of Kentucky; Mrs. Harris and Miss Kate Harris were among the guests. Others present from the South were Mrs. William L. James and Mrs. Edward Key, of Baltimore; Mrs. Edgar H. Bright, Madam Britton, Miss Britton, Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mrs. L. B. Hickey, Miss Miles, Mrs. James Maury and others, of New Orleans; Mrs. George Gunton, of Washington, and others.

On Wednesday Mrs. Lanier Dunn, of Washington, gave a tea at her cottage for Mr. Llorent and his sister, Miss Llorent, of Spain, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Dunn and their two attractive young daughters, the Misses Dunn, who have just returned from two years spent abroad. All the ladies before mentioned were present, as well as Mrs. Beth Barton French, Mrs. Fred W. Scott, Miss Scott, of Richmond.

Mr. George Cole Scott is giving the young set a glorious time here with driving parties on his brake, to which he drives the four-in-hand, Miss Llorent, of Spain, had the box-seat Thursday morning.

Mrs. Beth Barton French gave a dinner for the young people Wednesday night, followed by dancing. Barton Lodge was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and autumn fruits for the occasion. As the night was a clear moonlight one, the affair was doubly a success.

Mrs. George Davie gave a dinner the same night at the homestead for her

The City of Staunton.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
STAUNTON, VA., September 24.—A pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride, on East Main Street, Wednesday when Miss Belle M. Gregory became the bride of Mr. Silas M. Danner. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George W. Stover. The bride and groom are both very popular among the young set, and a large number of their friends were present. After the ceremony an old-fashioned Virginia supper was served. The bride is a beautiful young lady, and the groom is employed at the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Danner will make their home in Staunton.

On Thursday night a very large lawn social was held at Calvary Church in Augusta county. The crowd was immense, and was attended by people from many miles around.

The physicians of the county and city met here Wednesday and organized a medical society, to be known as the "Augusta County Medical Society." The meeting was called to order by Dr. Benjamin Blackford, superintendent Western State Hospital. Dr. D. S. DeJarnette was unanimously elected president; first vice-president, Dr. M. P. Jones, Churchville; second vice-president, Dr. A. C. Fox, Waynesboro; third vice-president, Dr. W. S. Whitmore, Mt. Sidney; secretary, Dr. J. W. Freed, Heraldsburg; treasurer, Dr. T. M. WAYNESBORO, VA.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
WAYNESBORO, VA., September 24.—The outgoing trains had scarcely borne away the first of the summer visitors, when the merry school boys and girls began to come in from all directions. The Valley Seminary opened its nineteenth season with a larger number of pupils than it has ever had, except in "boom" times. And Fishburne Military School has filled almost to the limit, in spite of the fact that the buildings were considerably enlarged this summer. The enrollment reaches about 90 up to date, and bids fair to go above the 100 mark. Pupils are enrolled from all parts of the country, from New York to Texas.

Not the least of the many pleasant reasons for this time of year is the pleasure of witnessing the basketball games at the Seminary and the football contests in the beautiful campus of the Fishburne Military School. These teams are now in progress of the season. The athletic fields of both schools will resound with the yells of the opposing teams.

The Ladies' Card Club has been re-organized for the winter, and will meet in the hall of the weekly contests at Miss Sue Wright's.

The Gun Club has discontinued its weekly shoots for the season, having had the most prosperous summer of its existence.

The School Board met Monday night and elected Mr. C. R. K. Varner, of Lexington, Va., principal of the Graded School. Mr. Varner is a graduate of V. M. I., having stood fifth in his class, and is a student of the University of Virginia. He is highly recommended, and the town is fortunate to secure his services. The school will open September 25th.
